

Greek Marathon and Sock Hop Today Climax Week

A week of campus wide "Greek" activity that included a Co-rec night, a men's smoker, a women's dessert and a lecture by Dean Edmund G. Williamson, will culminate today with the Greek marathon and the "Sock Hop".

While the evening's dance will be strictly social in nature, the marathon at 11:45 will be a severe test for the lean and mean athletes of the three social fraternities. Pitted against each other for the glory of bringing home the fine trophy that Greek Week Chairman Jack Arnold has promised, fraternity athletes will be prepared to give their all for their respective societies. As previously announced by the Greek Week committee, the grueling marathon run will start at the Physical Education Building and end at Washburn Hall.

Sox Rule Tonite

The Blue Notes, featuring Bob Gundstrom and his trumpet and Ferde Ogren on the piano, will furnish the music for the Greek dance tonight from 9 to 12 in Old main gym.

This will be a "come as you are" dance, with the girls wearing sweaters and skirts and the men in slacks and sport shirts.

The dance is being sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity-Sorority Board, and the board cordially invites all students to come—especially those interested in becoming Greeks.

Greek Convo Paces Week

"There are two points that determine the real value of a fraternity on a university campus," said Dean E. G. Williamson, speaker at Tuesday's Greek Week convocation. "Do they help the university, and do they produce in a person an appreciation of the values of life?" He then listed a few advantages and gave a few warnings about "frat" life to the new groups on campus.

As student personnel director on the main campus, Dean Williamson has had two decades of experiences in dealing with fraternities and sororities.

Fraternity life can teach a person to sacrifice and help others, he said, and the person can also receive the full benefits of a little of the "spice" of college life. Another advantage of being a new Greek, he noted, is that the student will probably become a campus leader. Over 42 per cent of the leaders on the main campus belong to fraternities and sororities, said the Dean.

The personnel director stressed the fact that fraternity life has its bad points, also. A spirit of Tribalness and an over-developed sense of loyalty to his group, rather than to his college is often developed in a Greek member. Also, the method of selecting members has been open to debate for a long time and is still a very touchy subject, he added.

In closing, the Dean noted that as a new campus, our social groups are just in their primary stage. He urged the audience to remember his warnings and to go on and build organizations that will even rival and surpass those on the main campus.

Student Commission Favors School Membership in NSA

The Student Commissioners of UMD took preliminary steps last week to join the National Student Association. The motion, which Student Commission President Grant Merritt termed, "Probably the most significant legislation handled in the Fall Quarter by the commission," for UMD enrollment in the NSA was passed unanimously.

Next step in the process of becoming a member school will be an all school referendum to be held in the middle of the Winter Quarter. Merritt, commenting on the possible outcome of the referendum stated, "That if the entrance in NSA is accepted by the students, the student can expect definite improvements in student welfare and student government at UMD."

Major functions of the NSA include the mutual sharing of student information on student problems that are found on local campus levels, a student stand in Congress seeking reduction of tax rates for college students, the restoration of the Fullbright Bill and action on all major issues that effect the student as students.

A feature of NSA activity that is often popular with member students is the practice of student discount service which permits students to obtain 10 to 30 per cent discounts at established NSA member stores. These discount rates are built up at stores located near the campus

The UMD chorus will present its annual Christmas Concert on Dec. 15 at 8:00 p. m. in Main auditorium. The program planned consists entirely of Christmas music, and is open to the public, free of charge.

Allen Downs, assistant professor of music, is the chorus director.

College 'Who's Who' Selection Named

The 1954-55 edition of "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges" will carry the sketches of 26 outstanding UMD students as a result of selection completed this week.

These representatives were voted on by department heads and the Student Commission after considering qualities such as excellence in scholarship, leadership, participation in extra-curricular and academic activities, citizenship, service to the school and promise of future usefulness in business and society.

CSO Retreat Tomorrow to Assist Clubs

The Congress of Student Organizations will meet tomorrow at the Northeast Experimental station to hold its annual fall retreat.

This day of activity for club presidents plus another representative from each organization will begin when they gather at Washburn at 8:30 a. m. It is designed especially to help campus groups function better. Individual group problems will be discussed with each representative expected to gain many ideas from this second CSO all day retreat.

Committees working on the project have scheduled the day's activities to include a pro and con panel discussion, speeches, and social events.

"On the Carpet," the panel discussion, will deal with UMD problems, and projects, ranging from the cafeteria, to the club rooms. The discussion will be led by Dr. Darland, Dr. Wood, Mr. Falk, Mr. Hobe, and Grant Merritt.

Other group meetings during the day will discuss the financial problems, auditing procedures, and club meeting time and membership problems.

The Congress of Student Organizations is made up of representatives of all student organizations on campus. CSO president is Dennis La Roque.

Compared to the number of UMD students honored by being named to the "Who's Who" in previous years, this year's group of 26 exceeds the past three years' respective groups of 19, 22 and 21 students selected. The publishers of the directory of outstanding college students annually give accredited and member institutions a quota which may vary slightly.

Though the exact significance of being listed in the college version of "Who's Who" holds little immediate value, it serves as a partial recognition of the outstanding students who will probably be the chief contributors to the leadership of our future society.

The sketches and pictures of these 26 UMD students recognized in this manner are published on page three of this issue.

Drive For Petey To Open Monday

It's time again to remember Petey.

Petey, a typical underprivileged child needs your help for a happy Christmas. Last year twenty children were presented with gifts of their choice. These gifts included a wrist watch, toboggan and an erector set. The drive being held this year on December 6-8 will attempt to raise funds to fete even more Petseys.

Be a proud wearer of an "I Remember Petey" tag and help put a smile on some child's face at Christmas.

Kappi Pi Artists Auction Works Today

George Bogart, (left) and Dick Wold, (right) display paintings that will be offered at the Kappa Pi art auction at 11 in the Main auditorium. Proceeds from the sale will be used to finance an art scholarship for a deserving art student in 1955.

Art admirers and Christmas shoppers alike are expected by the Kappa Pi art fraternity as they sponsor their annual art auction today at 11 in the Main Auditorium. The art objects on display and sale are the donations of the students of the art department, the faculty of the art department, and the members of the Kappa Pi art fraternity itself.

Dennis LaRoque will act as auctioneer for the pre-Christmas sale for the second consecutive year, but may call for assistance from the original art auctioneer, Herb Taylor, who acted as auctioneer, for the first auction, six years ago.

Proceeds from the three hour sale will be used for the establishment of an art scholarship.

Carmen Jones

A new RCA Victor release features the songs recorded directly from the sound track of the new cinemascope production "Carmen Jones." As you probably know, the music and story were borrowed from the Bizet opera "Carmen." Although the story is basically the same, there have been some minor changes . . . instead of working in a Seville cigarette factory, Carmen becomes a parachute packer in Chicago. Escamillo, the toreador in the opera, is Husky Miller, a prizefighter in the film version. The lyrics written by Oscar Hammerstein II to Bizet's music are both appropriate and original. The soprano aria, "Habanera," becomes Dat's Love and the Toreador song (probably one of the best known in operatic literature) evolves into Stand Up and Fight sung by the prizefighter.

One of the big, if not the biggest, moments from the album is Pearl Bailey's rendition of Beat Out That Rhythm On A Drum, an adaptation of the gypsy music from the opera.

Although both of the stars, Dorothy Dandridge and Harry Belafonte, are known primarily as singers, their voices are not used in the picture. Why? I'll never know.

Other film personalities that never sing with their own voices in movies are Vera-Ellen, Cyd Charisse and Rita Hayworth. The movie-voice for Vera-Ellen and Miss Charisse is usually supplied by Carole Richards, while Joanne Greer (she appeared with Ray Anthony at our '53 Prom) has warbled for la Hayworth. After seeing "Brigadoon" . . . why don't they substitute someone's voice for Gene Kelly?

During the last year or so, the music field has been flooded with an influx of quartets—the Four Lads, the Ames Brothers, the Chordettes, the Marineers, and on and on (some of these could take a few lessons from our Escorts).

One of these vocal groups, the Crewcuts, have come out with a new album for Mercury. This set called "The Crewcuts on the Campus," is (naturally enough) a collection of college songs. Among the selections are Varsity Drag, Collegiate, and Old Ox-Road. Of course, no such medley could ever be complete without the Wiffenpoof Song . . . they throw a light mambo beat into this one. All in all it's not bad listening.

Someone has suggested that I mention some of the new Christmas records. I don't think I'd better . . . after all, this is supposed to be the season of peace and goodwill.

Clitellus Tridecemlineatus! Huh? Who? Perplexed Reporter Wondered Too

Zoological Sleuths Give Hunter Clues

By Pauline Walle

I stood, nose pressed against the glass, in silent reverie. On the other side of the pane were stuffed forms, one bearing a card with the words Clitellus Tridecemlineatus Tridecemlineatus.

I pondered. What could it all mean? My brow wrinkled in perplexity. Somewhere in the back of my mind a bell rang. Somewhere farther back I felt jostled by the stream of passing beings. Then the stream stopped. I awoke to the realization that I would be late to class. With a final gaze I turned my steps toward the lecture room.

This occurred weeks ago. The vision of the Latin-named animal haunted me. There were others of doubtful origin. Feminine curiosity getting the best of me, I decided to crack the inside story. Thus, one day found me settling back to hear of the great game hunters of the science building. Science profs graciously expounded upon the whys and where-frogs.

A summer frog hunt, consisting of the duo zoological sherlocks, Odlaug and Hofslund netted the green frog in Lab 217. Dr. Krogstad's salamander was snatched from Itasca State Park.

Those cross-eyed midgits, the Planaria, were enticed by bits of liver, dangled into water surrounding the campus. This discounts the myth of the profs wading in kneeboots with dipnets or seines, apparently speculating for smelt in the newly dug parking lot.

Also a product of the parking lot was a porcupine. Doc Hofslund made the capture via cardboard box. The animal made it somewhat easier by strolling up to the door for a better view of its brotherhood within.

Pigs used in the anatomy lab bear the distinction of the new look. Their paws are outstretched for better coordination on the part of pre-meds and nurses.

Our cats?—formerly felines strutting the back alleys of Seattle. As an anatomy student, I can vouch for that fact. Following the instructions in a little brown booklet entitled "Lab Anatomy of the Cat," I made a horizontal slit in friend Chester's stomach. The contents revealed a diet of corn, grass, and other such garbage can varities. Pounced upon by city pound masters, the kitties were made shippable, then came to us through that means termed the biological supply house.

In one of Dr. Chiang's labs, it is not the problem of where the specimens have come from, but to which corner of the room they have disappeared. A girlish shriek usually gives away the culprit, and the animal is coiled back into its own jar of formaldehyde.

The skelton in Dr. Odlaug's closet came from India. It's still a mystery to me how, come lecture time, he managed to wheel it down the stairs from the second floor lab to the auditorium. Anyway, now I can go back to my bones and cat in peace.

And I have succeeded in my mission. Clitellus Tridecemlineatus Tridecemlineatus? It's a common ol' groundhog.

Campus Yarns by Will Sweeney

The spirit of Christmas is the spirit of giving. From the sounds of discontent coming from the student body, one would almost think that the administration does not give the service that a student might regularly expect from his alma mater. For example, why is it that there is no place on or even near campus where a student can cash a small check? While they have tentative plans to initiate some service of this kind when the new campus gets further underway, it would be kind of nice if something could be done in the meantime. Bus service: although things have progressed quite nicely in this direction since 1950, when the service was first launched, there still remains the problem of overcrowding. On one occasion, there is a class of about 150 who all must get up to the science building at one time (this does not include students who have other classes at the same time.) Slightly overcrowded I understand, even though the instructor rides the bus! Still, we're on our way in spite of many petty annoyances.

Do you remember "I Remember Petey" which was initiated last year at this time of year by Gamma Theta Phi? Well, in case you have forgotten, Gamma plans to collect funds for Petey (who represents the underprivileged orphans in this vicinity who will have no Christmas, except what they will receive through the Petey donation) again this year. They plan to solicit money starting today and running through next Wednesday. They were able to give over twenty orphans a big Christmas last year, and hope to increase this number—if the student body will give! A very good cause, so cut a few beers off of this week's budget, and join.

Professors take note! If you have felt despair at the fact that students have been sleeping through your classes, take heart, for the latest fad in learning is sleep-learning. Statistics prove that a certain amount of material can be absorbed by a sleeping person, so your efforts (some call them that) are not entirely wasted.

Miscellaneous: you know that cafeteria committee that worked so hard last year on the cafeteria? Well, it seems that the boys are hot on the trail of a change in the cafeteria. Seeing is believing, of course, but this is the season to be optimistic, so we wait . . . out of town students wonder who plots out the final exam schedule. No matter what they are taking, it always seems to happen that their first test starts on the first day, and their last one is on the final Friday. Believe me, that takes some planning . . . the shorts controversy that is currently raging on southern campuses, has passed UMDites by. The problem here is to cut down our apparel enough so that we are able to move around. Still, we got wind that there was a big wheel from somewhere, running around in his shorts in the back of the bookstore . . . new twist to an old theme—understand a group of students plan to pass the coins to get a new hat for Bob Falk. Also hear that Mr Falk sings opera, soap opera, that is . . . well, this closes Campus Crud for another year. Happy New Year even to the dear old administration!

Christmas Opera Has Four Day Run

A UMD Christmas production that last year played to an overflow house will be repeated in Main auditorium three nights and a matinee. It is Gian-Carlo Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

A one-act opera centering about the gift of a crippled child's crutch for the new-born King in Bethlehem, the much-talked-of Christmas hit last year will be presented at 8:15 p. m. Dec. 9, 10 and 14 and at 4 p. m. Dec. 12.

Barbara Nason, Moose Lake, a UMD music student active in music at both UMD and in her home community, will again sing the role of "Amahl," the crippled child. Josephine Antunovich, Duluth, will repeat her outstanding role as Amahl's Mother.

The three kings will be portrayed by Don Hogquist, Donald Lindstrom and Edward Alspach, all of Duluth. Carole Benkosky, and Dona Ylinen, both of Duluth, will appear as the dancers, and Robert Daniels, Duluth, as the page.

The UMD orchestra and vocal chamber ensemble will provide instrumental and choral background. Student members of the orchestra will be Douglas Overland, Gerald Glapa, Pat Prevost, William Anderson, Mary Mahnke, June Alspach, Elizabeth Alspach, David Henderson, Kenneth Miller, Leon Kohn, Mary Pat Miley, Andrew Pappas, and Arlene Johnson, all of Duluth; Ann Carlson, Austin; Paul Backlund, Grand Marais; Marilyn Soderberg, Proctor; Eugene Hall, Hibbing; Peter Isaacson, Iron River; Russell Thorne, Sandstone; Barbara Amlotte, Cloquet.

Ensemble members are Ione O'Donovan, Hibbing; Beverly Godich, Gilbert; and Delouise Higholt, Gail Keranen, Judy Barto, Carmi Williams, Elizabeth Ames, Nick Pappas, Don Lindstrom, Glenn Fox, Dessie Popovich, Tom Taylor and Ferde Ogren, all of Duluth.

AACTE Group to Evaluate Teacher Education at UMD

An intensive analysis of UMD academic and administrative operations will culminate next Thursday and Friday with a campus visit by an eight-member visitation committee from the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education.

Dr. Thomas W. Chamberlin, UMD academic dean, has coordinated the six-week preliminary study by UMD personnel paving the way for the AACTE visitation. Committees representing various phases of UMD activity have assisted.

The AACTE is the only accrediting organization for teachers colleges or departments of education in universities and colleges. The UMD study is one of 13 currently being made by the AACTE at American colleges and universities. Approximately 280 institutions make the AACTE accredited list.

Floyd R. Adams, St. Paul, director, teacher personnel, Minnesota State Department of Education and G. D. Robbins, Moorhead, Minn., State Teachers college, represent the state committee on teacher education and professional standards.

Special members of the committee representing the American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation will be Chester O. Jackson, Urbana, Ill., University of Illinois professor of physical education, and Mary E. McCoy, Northern Illinois State Teachers College physical education department.

Hourly meetings will be held with each participating UMD committee. Areas included will be educational objectives, personnel, faculty preparation, teaching load, curriculum and instruction, physical education evaluation for men and for women, library, laboratory school, advanced professional programs and student activities.

Members of the UMD student commission will meet with President Adams at 10 a. m. Friday. The concluding meeting at 4:30 p. m. Friday will bring together the entire UMD faculty and the visiting committee in a summarizing session.

Dorm Women To Hold Annual Yule Party

Torrance Hall women will soon be decorating the dormitory for the holiday season and their annual Christmas party to be held on Thursday, December 9, at 8:45 p. m. after the church group meetings, announced Mary Rees, fall quarter dorm president.

Each woman resident may invite one guest, invariably male. Invitations will be sent through the UMD student P. O. boxes. "We're planning on an enjoyable evening and do hope that it will be as nice as last year's Christmas party," general chairman Ginger Nakari declared enthusiastically.

Committee chairmen for the gala event are: Winnie Autio and Maxine Doolittle, decorations; Barbara Goodrich, invitations; Wilma Stageberg and Mary Ellen Schroeder, food; Ann Fetvedt, recreation.

Miss Fetvedt specified the recreation to include dancing, scrabble and card games. Prizes for room decorations will be awarded and an entertainment program is being planned.

Hunter Take Note!

Worms reported found in the livers of a number of deer taken in the Duluth area have been identified as a parasitic flatworm which in that form will not infect man if eaten.

Dr. Theron O. Odlaug, head of the biology department, University of Minnesota, Duluth Branch, said today a number of hunters have inquired about the worms and whether they make the livers unfit to eat.

Called Fascioloides magna, the worms live in the bile ducts of the liver and frequently occur in large numbers, Dr. Odlaug said.

They are dark-reddish color, about an inch wide and range from one to four inches in length. Although not infective in this form for man, they may be harmful to the deer if infestation is heavy, Dr. Odlaug added.

Eggs produced by the worms pass out of the deer's body with droppings and hatch when they come in contact with water. The larval forms bore into snails. After a period of development in the snail's body, a second generation of larvae are freed.

The second generation encysts on grasses and other vegetation in and around swamps, ponds and marshy areas. Feeding deer take in the encysted larvae and a new cycle begins.

"Man can become infected by drinking water from swamps or ponds containing the encysted larvae but not by eating of the adult form in deer liver," Dr. Odlaug explained.

The worm is closely related to a smaller form of parasite, Fasciola hepatica, which causes a condition known as "liver rot" in sheep, he noted.

Portraying major roles in "Amahl and the Night Visitors" are Barbara Nason, (left) as "Amahl" and Josephine Antunovich, (right) as Amahl's mother. The one act Christmas opera played to an overflow audience last year and will be presented four times this year in the Main auditorium.

Seven Students Attend Region ACU Conference

Representing UMD at the Region 7 meeting of the Association of College Unions at Fargo November 19-20, were Tom Johnson, Beverly Rowe, Dick Gottschald, Joyce Lahti, Virginia Lampson, Diane Lundstrom, and Larry Geissler.

"The value of the trip," commented Robert J. Falk, assistant to the director, Office of Student Personnel Services, and coordinator of student activities "was the opportunity to see a new student center building at Fargo and to discuss with other school delegates their programs, policies and student center governments."

Approximately 12 schools from Minnesota, the Dakotas, and southern Canada were represented. Main speaker at the conference was Dr. Hale Aarnes, professor and chairman of Education and Psychology at North Dakota Agriculture college.

Also accompanying UMD students was Miss Harriet Harrison, senior student counselor. Tom Johnson, chairman of the UMD student center committee, led a workshop session on the policies of the union. Next year the association will hold its meeting in Minneapolis.

NSA Membership

and the discount system is built up after a period of time.

Macalester now has a very extensive discount system that was started through NSA and has built up over a period of four years.

"NSA membership is not entered into merely by the college or the student government," Merritt stressed. "But each student becomes a member, therefore it is necessary that each student fully realize NSA responsibilities and advantages before the referendum is held."

Further information pertaining to the NSA membership application will be furnished by the Student Commission at the opening of the winter quarter.

McMillan Named WAA Sponsors Sport Day Sno-Week Head

By Barb Laibl

ley Ott, food (served in the caf').

Doug McMillan has been named the Snow-Week chairman for 1955. Grant Merritt, Student Commission president, named McMillan at a recent Student Commission meeting. McMillan has already taken preliminary steps in planning the activities for the mid-winter festival. Besides turning in a budget analysis to the commission, he has announced the following committee chairmen.

Arrangements, Kenneth Kulus. Publicity, Don Kobs. Button committee, Ted Beilli. Snow-Week button design, Jerry Calengor. Booklet committee, Collette Nolan. Varsity Show, Don Lachowski. Parade chairman, John Mitchell. Snow-Ball chairman, Dennis Ojakangas. Snow-Week booth chairman, Tom Sjogren. Lutsen Ski Trip, Janet Nelson. Snow Queen and King contest chairman, Bill Galinski.

McMillan named the following students to his administrative board: Vice-Chairman, Jack Arnold. Secretaries, Nina Spallacci and Roberta Danaghy. Bookkeeper, Pat Magie. Treasurer and auditor, LeRoy Johnson.

Because of certain campus conflicts, the exact dates of Snow-Week have not as yet been set by the committee, however, the activities will open on a week end, run through the entire week, and close with the Snow-Ball on a Saturday night.

Besides the beard contest that will be held to determine a successor to George Anderson the 1954 Snow King, a determined drive will be held by the various school organizations to find a successor to Sybil Wainstock, the Snow Queen.

Square dancing will fill the women's gym in the physical education building for one night of the week as an evening of dancing will precede the actual coronation of the Snow King, who will be chosen on the appearance of his beard.

Election of the new Snow Queen will be held the last two days of the week's activities, and the winning girl will be coronated on the night of the Variety Show. The Variety Show budget has been increased this year for the purpose of enlarging the size of the cash prizes that are awarded the talent winners. Don Lachowski, show chairman, has already formulated plans for the production of the show.

Because the exact dates of Tomorrow, UMD's women will be hosts to surrounding colleges at their annual Sports Day. The main sports will be basketball and swimming, with cageball, volleyball, badminton, and ping pong on the side lines. the week have not yet been set, UMD athletic contests have not been definitely worked into the week's activities. UMD has several important games scheduled for that part of the month, including an important series of games with Hamline in basketball and hockey, however.

"Novice and expert skier alike will appreciate the fine program that is being planned for the Lutsen Ski Trip," McMillan promised. "We are attempting to make the trip an overnight stay at the famed North Shore resort, and if we receive the student support that we expect, we feel that this event will be the outstanding activity of the week."

Organizations on UMD's campus were active in planning, travelling and beginning a sales campaign as fall quarter nears its end.

Barkers a boost

UMD's basketball team will return from Eastern tour this Sunday to begin a 25 game schedule Dec. 11. To give them some royal boosting, Barkers' Club will officially honor them on Thursday night at a social in Washburn beginning at 8 p. m.

Also sponsored by the Barkers organization is the dance following the first home basketball game Dec. 11. Music will be by the Blue Notes and vocals by the Escorts.

Their membership drive was very successful with over one hundred paid members sporting Barkers' buttons.

Theatre Guild a trip

Seven members of the Theatre Guild traveled down to the southern campus in the Twin Cities to see Marilyn Abalan, former UMD stage star in "Oedipus Rex." Mez Moog, Don Sundquist, Doug Rapp, Barb Humphrey, Evelyn Rapp, Doris Wessels and Alyce Claire Wellberg left Saturday afternoon in Don's and Barb's autos to see that evening's performance. Heard the performance was up to its usual standards as was Marilyn, as were the UMD seven.

Religious Clubs . Christmas Sales

Wesley Foundation started its annual Christmas wreath sales drive last Friday. So successful was the project last year that they are once again offering them at their same low price. (Contact any member of the group for further details.)

Both Newman club and LSA are selling Christmas cards again this year. To help these student organizations and also purchase those greeting cards conveniently are two good reasons to buy from members of these groups.

Home Ec Club Sponsors Yule Bazaar Sale

Anyone in the market for Christmas presents would do well to make a visit to Washburn Hall next Wednesday, December 8. That is the day of the annual Home Economics club bazaar. Their sale, featuring everything from baked goods to fancywork to Christmas gifts for the whole family, will run from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. in the small hall of Washburn. The girls will also have an auction sale at noon. Co-chairmen of the bazaar are Norma Johnson and Gloria Cross.

According to Dr. Ruth Palmer, head of the Home Economics department, the club tentatively plans to use the bazaar proceeds to send the officers to the state college club association conference and also to send delegates to the American Home Economics Association convention in Minneapolis next June. Club officers are president, Lois Rakti; vice president, Ann Cook; treasurer, Marilyn Moisio; corresponding secretary, Beatrice Luoma; recording secretary, Janice DeVries; and historian, Carol Johnson. Mrs. Snell is the advisor.

Wednesday at 8 p. m. eighteen club members participated in a style show at the J. C. Penney Co. Plaza store. The girls modeled outfits styled and made by themselves.

Eugene E. Berg, Duluth Teachers Association President, discusses the new Duluth Teachers Association scholarship with freshman Violet E. Anderson, UMD's first student to receive the award. Miss Anderson has chosen Social Studies and English for her major fields of study and plans a career in teaching upon graduation.

New UMD Scholarship Awarded

As businessmen, church organizations, clubs and private individuals become increasingly aware of the value of educational aid to promising young men and women at UMD, scholarship opportunities are increasing from year to year.

This year, enrollment records at UMD show that 8 per cent of its students are scholarship recipients and that at least seven new area scholarships have been added.

Among the new funds established in 1954 was the Duluth Teachers Association scholarship, available to Duluth public school graduates who are studying at or who plan to study at UMD.

The first Duluth Teachers Association scholar is Violet E. Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Anderson, Box 322, Fayre road.

Violet, a Duluth Central graduate of 1953 and a member of the National Honor Society, was selected on the favorable recommendation of her high school administrators for her character and good citizenship record.

In addition to these desirable traits, recipients of the award should preferably be those whose educational opportunities will be bettered through this financial assistance. The scholarship may be renewed yearly.

Blond and blue-eyed Violet began her freshman year this fall after a 14-month stretch as office receptionist in the UMD Office of Student Personnel Services. In addition to her typing, shorthand and receptionist duties, she was responsible for administering and scoring civil service and counseling department tests.

Miss Anderson is majoring in social studies and English and hopes to enter the teaching field after graduation.

Student Manager Extraordinary

by RALPH ROMANO

One of the most important individuals in UMD's athletic setup is the student manager. They are the men behind the scenes who for the love of a sport spend much of their time helping UMD's athletic prepare for battle.

Typical of this group is Ray Heino, student manager of the hockey team.

Ray, a senior, who is planning to graduate this spring, is a native of Hibbing, Minnesota and an industrial education major. He graduated from Hibbing high and Hibbing J. C. before coming to UMD.

One of his greatest athletic thrills came at Hibbing when the Class B Hockey team which he tended goal for won the state championship for their division. Although hockey is his first love other sports took some of his interest. He played guard on a local basketball team.

We asked him how he came to be student manager and he replied with this incident.

"When I transferred to UMD from Hibbing I felt that I didn't have much of a chance to make the hockey squad as a player so I sought out the student manager position. I was advised to see hockey coach Gordy Eddols to complete arrangements. One afternoon I visited his home. My knock was answered by a pretty young woman wearing jeans, T-shirt and a scarf on her head, who apparently was housecleaning. I asked the young lady if I could speak to her daddy and was my face red when she replied, 'You mean my husband don't you.'

Students interested in participating in intramural basketball or volleyball are urged to sign up in the Physical Education building. A schedule allowing one game a week is to be drawn up. Mr. Ward Wells is in charge of this event.

Freshman basketball practice will be held at 4 p. m. each afternoon in the UMD field house. Freshman coach Dale Bentz urges all freshmen who are interested in playing on the team to attend practices. This is in preparation for a December 10th opening against Virginia.

Frosh Basketeers Set Initial Tilt

Practice for the freshman basketball team began Monday. Dale Bentz a senior at UMD, newly appointed frosh coach, was greeted by a host of freshmen at the opening whistle Monday in the physical education building.

Bentz who lettered for the Bulldogs three years ago will not participate with the varsity because of a knee injury. He is filling the vacancy left in our teaching staff by Dick Carlson who is now a teacher at East high school.

Twenty players including Dale Erickson, Duane Eloffson, Ron Solheim, Bob Wershy and Carl Anderson who attended varsity practice were on hand Monday.

An active schedule including games with Virginia, Hibbing, Eveleth, and Ely Junior colleges has been drawn up. The initial game is with Virginia on December 10.

Hockey Bulldogs Scalped by Sioux of North Dakota

Coach Bob Boyat received a rough baptismal into the coaching ranks last week as his Bulldogs were overrun by the Sioux of North Dakota University in two contests at Grand Forks. NORTH DAKOTA 11 UMD 0

The Nodaks uncovered a new star, sophomore Bill Reichert who dippy doodled his way to four goals, leading his mates to the onesided victory.

Lack of experienced defensemen proved fatal as a fast North Dakota club walked in on goal almost at will. They scored five times in the first and third frames while the Bulldogs were being muzzled.

About 2,500 fans were on hand to watch both clubs open their seasons. Duane Johnson in the nets had 32 saves while Schultz and Yurcovich who shared the position for the Sioux had 14.

NORTH DAKOTA 8 UMD 2

A poor first period was all that hampered the Bulldogs from throwing a scare into the high powered Nodaks as the Maroon and Gold matched North Dakota's second and third period goal output.

Improved defensive play by UMD's squad was evident as the Bulldogs held the Sioux at bay.

Center Howard Wallene broke the shutout as he took a pass from Don Bourdeau to beat All American goalie Schultz from close in.

Wing Dick Bellamy rounded out the scoring when he scored in the third period assisted by Harold High and Gary Schaffer.

Bill Reichert again led the Sioux as he picked up his second hat trick in as many nights.

Duane Johnson in the nets kicked out 41 pucks and Schultz and Maruska had only 15.

Outstanding for the Bulldogs defensively was Duane Johnson in the nets and Jim Paton on defense. Alex Sisto and Don Bourdeau shone up front.

All Students who wish to attend the hockey games with North Dakota December 28 and 29 must secure tickets in Main Ticket Booth by presenting Fall Quarter activity card. The booth will be open December 13 thru 17 from 10 to 12. Each student will receive a reserve seat ticket. Activity cards WILL NOT be accepted at the door.
